

This day was one of the most exciting days I can ever remember but I am only 13. It will be hard to ever get any luckier or top this story!

I am like many other boys, I live to fish hunt and enjoy the wilderness! I have been deer hunting a few times before but I have not had much luck. My family got the opportunity to get us a hunt of a lifetime! I am also in select football, so my weekends are pretty much taken up.

This was probably going to be my only weekend to get my deer. My brothers and sisters could go back another time and get theirs. My brother and I were sitting there with our hunting guide and this huge deer came out. My brother wanted to get that one real bad. He is 21 and he has a big heart. He said no Bubba go ahead because this might be your last chance. I did not argue. I got ready, took some deep breaths and shot without hesitation. The deer turned his head to the side and even more when I shot, so the first horn (g3) got skimmed by the bullet, and the second point (g2) got blown all the way off, and I hit him right where I was supposed to. But because the horns slowed the bullet down, he did not fall. Instead, he took off running.

I got so nervous because I thought we were not going to find him. Luckily he stayed in the opening and gave me another shot (I was shaking and breathing like I had ran for miles) so I shot him on the other side and took him down. I was so excited I could not even breathe right! And to make the anticipation even worse I had to sit and wait to give my brother a chance to shoot a deer. And he did, more deer came out and he got his big Buck!! He took his down with one shot! As night was settling I finally got to run out and see my deer. Then I realized he was missing a point, and because I remember every bit of shooting him, I went back to the exact same spot where I shot him and found that point.

I thank God for my wonderful family and the opportunities that we have to spend in the wilderness with His beautiful animals with huge horns!

All the older people are telling me “you’re not gonna have much to look forward to when you get older, that deer is better than any deer I’ve ever shot, and you got one heck of a story to tell.”

This will be in scripted in my memory forever!!
